Lawyer says dog abuse an accident

BY JODI STYNER
Didsbury Review

The "whole story" of how a Didsbury dog ended up dead is about to come out, and the public may be surprised, according to a lawyer for one of the accused.

Defence counsel Mark Takada said the incident that led to Daisy Duke, a lab-collie cross, being euthanized last month was an accident – or at least it started out that way.

"As I understand, the start of the case was an accident," Takada, who represents 19-year-old Daniel Charles Haskett said outside court last week.

MARK TAKADA
defence lawyer

He claims one of the accused hit the animal with a car, and they panicked.

Takada said what followed – including the reason why the young men opted not to call a veterinarian – will evolve in the courtroom, but said his client is not the evil person he's been portrayed as.

"A lot of people just thought these are sadistic brutes and they found a dog and decided to do all these things to it and that's not what happened at all," he said.

While Haskett was expected to enter a plea last Wednesday, Crown prosecutor Gordon Haight requested an adjournment to further consult with the lead investigator.

Takada said the postponement speaks volumes about how complicated the case is.

"If it was clear-cut, I think we would have set a date here today for either a trial or for a guilty plea," he said.

"It's not as simple as a lot of people might make this out to be and when all the facts are known, it may be apparent why we haven't proceeded to enter a plea."

The fact that two individuals were involved adds to the complication, according to Takada, who said investigators will need to be clear on what parts of the case each of the accused was involved in.

"You've got to consider that two people being charged doesn't mean that they all did everything that happened to the animal in the case," he said.

As Takada understands the evidence, his client was not involved in dragging the dog.

Asked if there is a chance a plea deal will be made in the case, Takada said he doesn't yet know.

"There's going to be some discussions between the prosecutor and myself about how the matter is going to go ahead – if it goes ahead," he said.

Takada said his client does feel remorse for what he did.

"Life has been very difficult for him because of what happened and he's got a lot of regret about what happened," he said.

"It was a very sad situation and he feels very badly about that."

Takada urged Haskett to stay away from the courthouse Nov. 22 in the wake of protestor action at his first appearance Nov. 6.

"Quite frankly I was concerned about the security here the last day," he said.

Takada said he has no problem with peaceful protesting, but he believes, in this case, protestors went too far.

"You cross the line when you try and intimidate a person and try to impede their right to come and go freely," he said.

"It's not right."

Haskett is scheduled to enter a plea in the case Dec. 11 in Didsbury Provincial Court.

The second accused, who can't be named under the Youth Justice Act, is due back in court Dec. 7.

Wal-Mart confirmed for Olds

BY STEPHANIE MYLES
For the Review

Officials have finally confirmed Wal-Mart is coming to Olds.

Andrew Megson, spokesperson for Springwood Developments, said the big-box store is set to begin construction in February 2007 for a fall opening.

Springwood is developing the Dodd quarter section on Highway 27 in the west end of town into retail, multi-family residential and industrial areas. The retail portion will also include Canadian Tire, Sobeys and Leo's Building Supplies, a local business, as part of Springwood's Cornerstone shopping centre.

Megson spoke to a crowd of about 80 local business people at a luncheon hosted by the Olds & District Chamber of Commerce last Wednesday.

He said stores like Wal-Mart will draw customers from a greater geographic area and turn Olds into a major economic centre. Springwood has seen these results in other towns, such as Lloydminster, Okotoks and Camrose.

"Where we have developed, we're seeing these cities turn into trading pods," said Megson. "And not just retail trading pods. They're growing as medical hubs, they're growing as service hubs."

The town has been in contact with Springwood for over a year now, and Megson said if Olds hadn't welcomed the shopping centre, it would've been built in a nearby town.

"There's only so many tax dollars that can be spent," he said. "We now as a commerce centre have to fight for that almighty retail dollar."

One local business owner said she's concerned about taking business from other towns.

"Where we have developed, we're seeing these cities turn into trading pods."

ANDREW MEGSON
spokesperson,
Springwood
Developments

"We're talking about killing off Didsbury shopping, Sundre shopping, Three Hills, Bowden - any small town in the area is going to be affected," said Audrey Prizeman, who owns The Source in Olds and Sundre with her husband.

Other business owners said they're concerned about finding enough employees for the new stores and housing to support them.

"My Help Wanted sign never comes down," said Bruce Bieber, owner of Olds Home Hardware.

Mayor Judy Dahl tried to ease those concerns. She said Olds and neighbouring municipalities are co-operating so everyone benefits from the new development.

"We're all building together, we're working together, and we're going to accommodate each other," she said.

Megson said that other places, like Camrose, were experiencing labour shortfalls before the shopping centre came, but it drew enough employees to support itself.

"The opportunities were there, the people came," he said. "From an economic perspective, three or four million dollars of tax revenue were generated from that."

Megson focused on this potential benefit to the community to ease any fears local business owners might have. He said a store like Wal-Mart will keep people in Olds and they'll spend more time shopping at other stores in town.

"Our experience is that it adds more than it takes away," he said, noting that in other towns like Camrose, the downtown core saw increased sales.

Megson said businesses in Olds have to take advantage of this opportunity for growth and focus on customer service, something big-box retailers can't provide.

"You should reconnect with your customers, you should increase your profile, you should ensure that your level of service is such that people want to come in and enjoy what you're selling," he said. "And if you do that you will take the market share that you should have."

Councillor Warren Smith said he agrees the new shopping centre will open doors for other businesses in Olds.

"We're going to capitalize on the traffic," he said.

"That's the essence of the modern commercial world, to identify and plan and move forward."

Megson said the shopping centre will develop fully over the next three to five years, with room for about 20 more businesses to lease space from Springwood, the landowner.

The Olds Institute's lifestyles committee played a key role in bringing Megson to Olds to address the concerns of local businesses.

Residents ask for tax break

Rates should match services, they say

BY JODI STYNER
Didsbury Review

Some Didsbury residents feel they're paying too much for too little and they're fed up.

Jim Tainsh, who has lived along Hwy. 582 for 12 years, said he's tired of paying more taxes than in-town residents who are provided more services for their dollar and he'd like to see a break on his tax bill.

"Where others receive Town water, we have our own wells we have to drill, establish and maintain; where other town residents receive sewer service, we have septic fields to maintain each year," he said.

"We have no cable TV, no high-speed internet, and no fire hydrants, which means we pay higher insurance; our streets have no lights, we have no sidewalks, and the Town does nothing to maintain any of it."

His neighbour, Bev Wilson, agreed.

She said in 32 years, she and her husband have seen their taxes increase by $2,600 and, in that time, they've received little from the Town other than the privilege of living in Didsbury.

"Yes we've had some services, like the pool and the curling rink, but I feel after all these years, we do deserve something from the Town," said Wilson.

"I don't mind paying for education or hospitals, or any of that, that's a part of life, but for 10-12 years we've been paying for a whole bunch of services on our tax bills that we don't have."

OUT OF TOWN - Out of town residents on Hwy. 582 are asking the Didsbury Town Council to consider reducing their taxes as they don't receive full services enjoyed by in-town residents.

Tainsh has requested that council provide him with a list of mill rates, so he can see exactly what he's paying for.

Council has agreed to that, once the mill rates are calculated, but CAO Roy Brown said that won't likely be until March.

Mayor Dorothy Moore said council will be discussing this issue as it continues its strategic planning.

"Council has always had this as a question in their strategic thinking for the future and also for the possibility of including other country residential properties within the town in the future," she said.

Moore said other municipalities face this same issue and in Didsbury there is more than one neighbourhood that could be affected if a change is made.

Under the municipal government act, it is possible to create classes of taxpayers, and that is what council will decide during its budget planning.

EDITORIAL & OPINION

Canada's family feud

Prime Minister Stephen Harper's recent motion to declare Quebecers as a "nation within a united Canada" has been called a brilliant pre-emptive strike against other parties' own agendas, most notably the Bloc Quebecois.

On the other hand, rather than dousing potential flames, it may do little more than fuel to a dormant fire.

In this case, it seems Harper is playing Dad, offering a little piece of candy in hopes of a few minutes of silence while the kids happily suck away.

It was a negotiation ploy, plain and simple.

But Quebec separatists are more the teenage variety, smart and savvy. They'll happily suck on their candy and then work on figuring out a way to con Dad into giving them more. If their con doesn't work, they'll start to rebel.

"But you promised!" they'll wine.

Like perpetual teenagers, sovereigntists are struggling for power and testing the system.

And it wouldn't be at all surprising if this whole thing had a reverberating effect on her sister province, Alberta.

With a conservative heading up the federal government, Albertan separatists have felt somewhat comforted of late, and have prepared to lay down for a two-year nap.

But seeing what its more politically powerful sister has just been offered - whether it's simply lip service or not - she might just want a piece too.

You see, Alberta is the overachiever, whose accomplishments are generally seen as a shared family success.

But she did the work and she wants the limelight.

The fact is, both Quebec and Alberta separatist groups are like big spoiled brats.

Quebec separatists argue they have a distinct culture and the only way to protect that is by attaining autonomy from the rest of the culturally retarded country.

Albertan separatists argue that an Eastern-heavy power is unfairly siphoning hard earned dollars from the West to throw itself big parties.

Here's a message to both juvenile delinquents:

The reality is that this is a family and you don't usually get to pick your family. You're stuck with them.

But this is a family that you at least get one say in choosing.

And one day when you really need them, and you will, wouldn't it be nice if they were still there for you?

CANADIAN DEATH TOLL MOUNTS...

- CIB/DOE

BY NOREEN OLSON
For the Review

It's countdown to Christmas and every mail brings another clutch of catalogues. Their scope is amazing, every possibility is covered, every wish can be granted, we have catalogues for toys, hunting equipment, electronics, books, science and nature, clothing, food and recreation. A lot of the electronic items are beyond my comprehension and the toys are so many and so various that I don't know how any kid can make a choice.

As a mom and grandma I really want to buy gifts for my children and grandchildren but I am overwhelmed by the available variety and going through the catalogues and local shops only increases my confusion.

Added to this is the knowledge that none of my family "needs" a thing, and anything they really want, they already have. Nobody wants more "stuff"; they hardly have room for the "stuff" they have now.

I know that this is the normal state of affairs for many Alberta households because several of my family and friends have had garage sales recently and found that it is almost impossible to get rid of anything left over. Value Village is stocked to the rafters, the women's shelter has no more storage space, kids' charities have more clothes than they can use and they will grudgingly take toys and books if they are new.

Many Diabetes clothing collection bins have had to close because people cram them with unwanted furniture. Nobody wants used furniture, and no one repairs anything. It's easier and often cheaper to just buy new.

We are an affluent, throw-away society whose "stuff" just keeps on accumulating and yet within a stone's throw of the household that needs and wants nothing, people are sleeping on the street, lining up at the Mustard Seed for soup or patronising the Food Bank.

There has got to be a better way.

In one year in the British Isles, the US and Canada, enough money is spent on dog and cat food to feed and immunize every child in Africa.

The price of one woman's spa day, including massage, hot oil, wax, facial, etc. would stock eight medical clinics in Ghana. A wash, cut and set at an upscale Calgary hair salon could educate four Chinese girls for a year.

One designer purse and matching shoes could build a two room home for 10 AIDS orphans in Africa.

For the price of a really good snowboard you could supply eight African classrooms with textbooks, pencils, paper, notebooks and rulers, and for the price of dinner and drinks for six in a really nice restaurant, you could buy backpacks and school supplies for 20 poverty level Canadian kids.

When you are shopping for your loved ones this Christmas, think for a moment about whether or not they are going to thank you for a lot more "stuff."

Maybe there is a better way to spend some money this Christmas.

PONDERINGS OF THE HEART Time is precious

BY MARGARET FRADLEY
For the Review

Some time ago, someone brought to my mind that each day we have been given 86,400 seconds to be used in any way we choose.

This is a daily gift and what we waste or do not use, cannot be carried forward to another day.

It is much like the "manna" which fed the children of Israel as they travelled through the wilderness. They were to gather only as much as they had need for each day; if it was saved or hoarded, it became rancid, mouldy and rotten.

So, each of us has 86,400 seconds of time each day, and every night the time not used is written off; it is lost, and whatever we have failed to use for a good purpose is gone. There are no overdrafts.

We need to invest our precious moments wisely, so as to reap from them the best of happiness, fulfillment, joy, contentment, health, and success.

We need to cherish these precious gifts of time; they become more and more precious as we share them with others.

Time waits for no man - yesterday is gone, tomorrow has not yet arrived. Today is a gift, it's called the "present".

Incredible community

Undoubtedly there will be many others commenting on the incredibly successful fundraiser planned for Brooke Krebs last Saturday evening.

I just want to add my commendations to everyone who contributed in any way to make this evening such a fabulous event, especially the organizing committee including Gord and Dennise Krebs, Mike & Sharon Barr, Vair & Pam Whitlow, and Bruce or AJ Robertson...an incredible job - well done!

Also to those who donated or bought items, volunteered in any way, or just participated either through attendance at the event or from afar (like those at a function at Lone Pine the same night).

It was truly a memorable evening, a congregating of hundreds of adults and children alike, and I cannot imagine ever again seeing three pies sell for more than $1,400!!!

In spite of the sad circumstances of Brooke's diagnosis being the cause for the event, it aptly was called "Friends Helping Friends", and exemplified what this incredible community is all about!

This is

Which is why we aim to reduce our impact.

Alberta's oil and gas industry believes in using innovative practices to minimize the effects of our activities. Like using slant drilling to minimize surface disturbance.

In traditional vertical drilling, an oil and gas company drills straight down, retrieves whatever oil or gas it can, then moves on to another spot. This can mean several single well sites, with multiple access roads and pipelines. In other words: multiple disturbances.

While not always feasible, slant drilling can sometimes reduce that footprint. It allows wells to be drilled at an angle where geologically possible. The company may no longer have to build separate pads directly above each oil or gas reservoir. Instead, it may be able to cluster several wells onto one multi-well pad.

Canadian Natural Resources Ltd. is one company that practices this method of controlling the land disturbance footprint where feasible. By using slant drilling instead of vertical in some areas, in 2005 it was able to use 54 fewer well pads. Which means 54 sites left untouched.

A true Country Christmas

Businesses open late for holiday shopping

BY JODI STYNER
Didsbury Review

A Country Christmas is one of the great things about living in a small town.

It's a chance to visit with friends over a hot cup of cocoa, to walk into a warm, inviting store where you'll find that perfect gift, and to wander under a glow of colourful lights, seeing the streets transformed in all their holiday glory.

You can do all of that this Friday when Country Christmas, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, comes to town.

"We want the lights sparkling, we want the garlands lit, we want the windows decorated and make it a true country Christmas," said committee chair Margo Ward.

Start the evening off by hitching a wagon ride through the beautiful downtown. The wagons travel regularly between Ward Value Drug Mart and Victoria Square Mall, so pick your departure and arrival points as you like.

Then grab a beef on a bun or some cotton candy at the train station.

While you're there, if you have kids with you, they can get a free photo with Santa.

Then, take advantage of free babysitting offered by Didsbury Neighborhood Place while you hit the stores for deals and discounts, available until 11 p.m.

Don't forget to enter the turkey draw at one of the 32 participating stores to win your Christmas bird.

Organizers of the event say Country Christmas is a chance to showcase downtown Didsbury for new and long-time residents alike.

"Our main purpose is to get as many people in here as we can so they will see what's here," said Ward.

MARGO WARD
Country Christmas committee chair

will give them a chance to see what Didsbury businesses have to offer.

Not only that, it gives them an opportunity to see what Didsbury people are all about.

If you're new to Didsbury, enjoy a free hot chocolate or cider at a local business and take in the town.

If you're a long-time resident and you've experienced Country Christmas before, may this be your best yet.

Rambler Minute

Saturday morning the Didsbury Tykes #1 Team travelled out of town to face off against Sundre in League play. The last time these two teams squared off two weeks ago it ended up in a hard fought 13-13 tie. The boys knew the task would be difficult in Sundre and came out firing on all cylinders. Didsbury opened the scoring early on and kept up the attack all game. The final score was Didsbury 16-Sundre 2. Goal scorers for Didsbury were Brett Coates, Hunter Nelson, Erran Thompson, Jett Laveck, Koby Brander and Brodie Dunn. Assists were given to Taylor Gingell, Jordan Mierke, Jamie Coates and Corson Waiting. The Game Trooper Helmet was awarded to Brett Coates for his tireless effort. Great job boys! Next action for the team is Sunday Dec. 3 at 10:00 am at Didsbury against Three Hills.

The Didsbury Novice team also travelled to Sundre on Saturday. The team played well and finished the game with a 7-3 win. Ethan Williams was in net and made some great saves. The Novice team will face Sundre again on December 3rd in their home rink at 11:45 am. They will also play against Carstairs on Saturday, December 2nd at 12:30 p.m.

Watch next week for information about the upcoming DMHA Mouse Races to be held at the Multi-Purpose Room on Dec. 8th. It is sure to be a fun evening and a great fundraiser! See any DMHA parent for tickets and information.

Colts take over second spot

BY BARRY WILLIAMS
Didsbury Review

With a pair of wins last week in Heritage Junior B Hockey League action, the Mountain View Colts have moved into second place in the Central Division Standings.

Latest statistics released by league officials indicate the Colts have increased their seasonal total to 22 points, one behind the Airdrie Thunder, who lead the division with 23 points.

In league action played at the Didsbury Memorial Complex on Saturday, Nov. 25, fans were treated to a barrage of goals as the Colts' sharpshooters found the back of the Maskwacis Attack net for a baker's dozen in defeating the Attack 13-1.

With the game never in doubt, the Colts' offensive threat was in full throttle as they blasted the Attack net with 63 shots.

After the Attack notched their only goal off the stick of Jon Wildcat early in the first period, the Colts responded by scoring 13 unanswered goals.

Sniper Mike Arnold recorded a natural hat trick in the opening stanza as the Colts held a 6-1 lead after twenty minutes of play. Byron Campbell chipped in with a pair of goals and Ian Brander blinked the red light once to account for the rest of the Colts' scoring in the first period.

Denting the twine for the Colts in the second period were Ian Brander and Will Harvie. Heading into the second intermission, the Colts' lead increased to 8-1.

In the final stanza, Arnold continued his torrid scoring pace, notching his fourth goal of the game with Brendan Slade chipping in with a pair. Singletons were notched by Will Harvie and Ian Brander.

Although Colts' netminder Kris Jackson could have taken an extended coffee break during the game, he made several brilliant saves when the Attack snipers were able to penetrate the Colts offensively.

Playing in Three Hills on Friday, Nov. 24, the fans were treated to a defensive struggle at the Three Hills Centennial Arena as the Colts upset the Thrashers 3-2.

Stealing the spotlight in the game was Colts' netminder, Evan Miller as he made several sensational saves in keeping the Colts in the contest throughout the 60 minute adventure. Miller finished the game with 33 saves, while Thrashers goalie, Colter Haugen blocked 28 shots directed at the Thrashers' net.

After a scoreless first period, Will Harvie and Justin Duncalfe gave the Colts a 2-1 lead after forty minutes of play. Blinking the red light for the Thrashers in the second period was Corey Andersen.

Early in the third frame, Kevin Koustrup evened the score at 2-2 with a Thrashers' power play marker.

With just over five minutes left to play, Justin Duncalfe notched the winner for the Colts.

Three Colts, Ian Brander, Mike Arnold and Jeff Clazie are in the top ten in league scoring. Brander has 26 points on 13 goals and 13 assists. Meanwhile, Mike Arnold and Jeff Clazie have 25 points apiece. Arnold has 16 goals and 9 assists while Clazie has 9 goals and 16 assists.

Between the pipes, Evan Miller has posted a 3.26 GAA and a save percentage of .912 while, Kris Jackson has a 3.44 GAA and a save percentage of .844.

On Saturday, Dec. 2, the Colts travel to Hobbema to tangle with the Attack. Their next home game is on Dec. 9 with the Medicine Hat Cubs providing the opposition. Game time is 8 p.m.

Didsbury a top 10 Choosewell community

BY JODI STYNER
Didsbury Review

Didsbury stepped up to the Choosewell Challenge in a big way and is now being rewarded for its success.

One of only 10 Alberta Communities to be recognized (out of 112 who participated in the Challenge), Didsbury is being awarded for outstanding promotion and participation in the 1,000-4,999 population category.

Organizers say the success was a true community effort.

"In large part, a lot of hours went into it as far as the promotion end of it," said Byron Sayer.

Information went out through the web site, Town Crier, and Didsbury Review.

As well, a billboard-type sign was placed prominently on a downtown street corner, and weekly emails were sent out to participants to give updates and health tips.

That took a lot of volunteers, according to Sayer.

And he wants to give credit to the approximately 240 participants who committed themselves to biking, walking, running and swimming their way to better health.

"We got it out there and lots of people responded," said Sayer.

"There are several who made it there and back several times over, so I guess we achieved what we were going for."

BYRON SAYER

Town of Didsbury recreation manager

The provincewide summer initiative had people exercising all the way to the Pacific Ocean.

While the route was imaginary, the workouts definitely weren't.

Participants were awarded 10 km for every half hour of exercise, and had to log 1,000 km to reach their final destination of Vancouver.

Seventy people made it all the way to the West Coast.

"There are several who made it there and back several times over, so I guess we achieved what we were going for," said Sayer.

Promotion and planning for the program began in March and numerous businesses jumped on board to sponsor awards and many created fitness challenges with each other.

Next year, Sayer said he plans to do more promotion at the youth level.

"This challenge really reached the adult crowd and a few kids and families, but next year we'd like to focus a little more on the youth and get them involved," said Sayer.

"I think it's really important, especially if you consider the trends in childhood obesity and just when you look around at the general health of our culture, it's just huge that we get out there and stay active."

This year's top achievers in the 2006 Community Choosewell Challenge are as follows.

ADULT:

1. Don MacMillan-6,100 km.
2. Byron Sayer-4,900 km.
3. Kirsten Phillips-4,500 km.

YOUTH:

1. Slater Ransom-2,500 km.
2. Sharly Ransom-2,200 km.

GROUP:

1. Lisa, Gary, Jordan, Rebecca Wieben-5,950 km.
2. Shirlee and Edward Toews-3,300 km.
3. Astrid and Bill Nicoll; Judy and Alan Coutts-3,075 km.
